

Become an Intern With Deutsche Telekom in an International Product Management Environment!

You have a technical education but you are very business oriented? Or a business education but very tech savvy? A good communicator and coordinator? Interested in multi-cultural environments? Then join Deutsche Telekom International Carrier Sales & Solutions (ICSS) for an exciting & instructive product management internship in London, Budapest, Paris or Bonn!

Content/Tasks

You are supporting a product management team in further developing roaming, clearing and messaging solutions for ICSS customers (mobile operators, broadband ISP's and content providers) on all five continents. You assist the team in daily recurring tasks (implementation monitoring, status reporting to customers), in developing sales tools and presentations but you may also be responsible for assigned projects (strategy, product development, business cases). You will select your tasks together with the team members depending on your skills and preferences.

Working in a product management environment you will be interfaced with different entities within Deutsche Telekom as well as with customers and partners worldwide. The product management team is based on different international sites. Cooperation per email, audio and video conference is therefore necessary. The working language is English, though back-office tasks are interfaced with a German environment. Hence German is also your daily communication language.

The team is young and relatively small and has a hand-on, almost "start-up"-like spirit even though working within Deutsche Telekom requires strong skills in corporate and networking thinking.
