Is providing good service something that motivates you, too? Then why not join us at the cutting edge to develop innovative products and services in an international environment.

Trainee in IT (m/f) at Allianz Managed Operations & Services (AMOS) SE

You are looking for a challenging and exciting job in a dynamic international environment? You are a university graduate with IT expertise and leadership potential and you are seeking the ideal start to your career?

Then you are the perfect candidate to start your career with our international AMOS Trainee Program in IT!

Stable and at the same time high-quality IT operations supported by efficient processes are essential for a strong financial services provider. The IT unit supports Allianz companies along their entire value chain with innovative IT products and services and operates one of the largest data centres in Europe.

Program content

During the 18-month trainee program with focus on IT, split up into 3 assignments of 6 months each, you will participate in various international AMOS IT projects and take over tasks in project teams as well as bear responsibility for your own projects.

Taking into consideration your core expertise, individual strengths and interests, together with us you will design your individual entry program in preparation of your career as an executive or specialist within AMOS. In the course of these 18 months you will continuously develop yourself on and off the job and gain relevant experience in project management. To facilitate your familiarization of AMOS as a global company you will have the option of experiencing an international assignment and get to know a country-specific project directly on site in more detail.

During the entire program a top management representative will be your mentor and supports you in your professional and personal development.

Take your future into your own hands and prove your know-how!
